They will be in the Bulldogger as an event, yet we need a good flyer to get out to broadcast it to the all-breed participants... posted in North of Seattle Obedience and training facilities.

Insurance Policy: The current insurance policy with Sportsmen's is set to renew Sandy researched other options and brought to the club that RVNA is another company comparable with Sportsmen. Comparing the two she found that Sportsman's coverage is $645 per year and their coverage includes coverage for the trailer and the property but does not cover members at events. RVNA premium is $550 per year and covers the trailer but not the property the trailer is located on. RVNA also covers member and guests at events. M/S/C to go with RVNA for insurance coverage.

SlobberFest: September 15th and will be held at the south shelter beginning at 10:00am running through 1:00 pm. Better location this year. Will need the canopy and tables out of the trailer. Dave will reach out to Jeff about getting items out of the trailer. Discussed having a "Ask the Breeder" table where folks can come up and ask questions. AKC FIT DOG!!

Now more than ever, fitness is important for both dogs and people. The most commonly recommended exercise to improve fitness is walking. Walking is considered a safe activity that improves muscular strength, circulation, memory, weight loss, increases energy, helps with sleep, and reduces stress. The American Heart Association recommends walking a minimum of 150 minutes per week. Participation in the AKC FIT DOG program will bring health benefits to both you and your dog.

If you walk with your dog on a regular basis, join the ranks of AKC FIT DOG and get your free (5-3/4 inches) FIT DOG logo car magnet.

The AKC FIT DOG magnet proudly declares to the world that you are committed to your dog's health and fitness through regular exercise.

You can order your free magnet when you and your dog have met one of these fitness goals:

1. Walked at least 30 minutes 5 times per week for a total of at least 150 minutes per week for at least 3 months. For dogs and people in good shape.
2. Walked at least 15 minutes per session at least 10 times per week (e.g., two 15-min walks per day) for at least 3 months. For dogs or people who would benefit from a walk that is a shorter duration, e.g., senior dogs.

How to Get Your Magnet

1. Complete your walks. Keep a record so you will know when you've met your goal.
2. Complete the Magnet Order Form. It's that simple! We'll send you magnet.

If you are already taking your dog on regular walks, you may count those. Remember that before starting an exercise program for your dog, it is a good idea to consult with your veterinarian.

Cherry Eye

Submitted by Cheryl Knapp, BCA Health Committee

Cherry Eye is one of the most common issues that plague our breed. Although it doesn't appear to cause as much discomfort to the dog as the unsightly bulging reddish mass suggests, it can hinder proper tear production and lead to other eye irritation and infections. Cherry eye is often caused by weakened connective tissue that fails to hold the tear gland in place at the base of the third eyelid. The gland can then pop out of position and appears as a fleshy blob protruding out of the inside corner of the eye--and suddenly your adorable little puppy looks like something out of a horror movie! Here are a few preventative tips as well as surgical techniques used to bring those puppy-dog eyes back to their heart-stealing best.

PREVENTION:

In my experience cherry eye has reared it's blobby head around 3-to-7 months when my pups have been going through their peak growth spurts. I have found that if I can massage the gland back into proper position immediately before there is much redness or swelling--and continue to be diligent to do this as needed--that the gland will often stay in place once the pup is past this rapid phase of growth. I will also keep the eye lubricated and/or apply steroid drops prescribed by my vet as well as attempt to keep the puppy from a lot of excessive roughhousing. Since I do a lot of performance sports with my dogs I also start them on Glucosamine/Chondroitin supplements.

Here are a few tips for HOME REMEDIES to hopefully avoid cherry eye surgery on your Bulldog:

PHYSICAL MASSAGE: Close the eyelid and firmly press/massage the gland back into position with your thumb using a circular motion. With the eyelid closed the gland is protected by the soft tissue as you press towards the inside corner of the eye. The longer the gland is left in its prolapsed state, the more swollen and irritated it can become and the more difficult it will be to successfully press it back into place--so try to stay on top of the issue and manipulate it back as soon as possible!

BLACK TEA: Place a black tea bag in 1 cup of boiling water and steep until cool enough to touch. You can use 5-6 drops of this tea solution in each eye 3-4 times a day for one week. Black tea contains tannins that are anti-microbial and reduce the irritation in the eye. The cooled tea bag can also be held against the eye.

HONEY WATER: Add 1 teaspoon of raw, local (unpasteurized) honey to 1/2 cup of hot water. Cool and place 4-5 drops in the eye 3-4 times per day. You can also use a combination of tea & honey.

GLUCOSAMINE/CHONTOITIN: Since cherry eye can be related to weak connective tissues, this supplement can help strengthen the strands of connective tissue that hold the gland in place.

CORTICAL STEROID DROPS: Your vet can prescribe drops or ointment to reduce the swelling and address any infection that can develop due to the exposed and irritated gland. Keeping the eye lubricated as well as reducing the swelling will increase the chances of being able to massage the gland back into place.

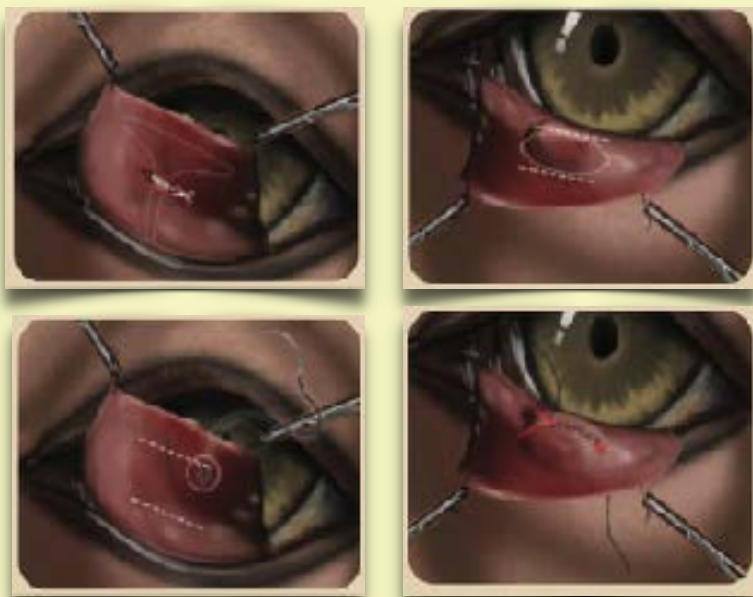

SURGICAL OPTIONS:

In the case of a persistent or grossly enlarged gland that just won't stay put, there are several surgical options for correcting the issue:

TACKING: The gland is placed back into position and "tacked" using sutures to attempt to maintain proper position. This option has the highest failure rate and is not worth subjecting your Bulldog to anesthesia.

POCKET TECHNIQUE: A "pocket" is made within the third eyelid and the gland is pressed inside.

MODIFIED MORGAN POCKET TECHNIQUE: A modification on the pocket technique where bends in the t-shaped cartilage of the third eyelid is corrected and reinforcing sutures are added to help hold it in place. A "tunnel" is formed in the third eyelid, enabling tear drainage.

REMOVAL: The removal of the gland used to be the treatment of choice for cherry eye, however most veterinary schools now emphasize the importance of saving the gland to prevent future issues with dry eye. This gland is responsible for about 40% of the tear production within the eye.

In a survey of Bulldog breeders who have had experience with various methods of cherry eye treatment, removal of the gland was the overwhelming choice. Several breeders had tried other techniques, only to have the cherry eye recur--and their dog(s) ended up having to undergo general anesthesia multiple times before the problem was corrected. Every breeder who responded said that the dogs that had undergone removal of the gland never encountered issues with dry eye--even in old age--yet their dogs who had alternative techniques used had developed the problem. It was a common consensus that a dog would develop dry eye only if predisposed to the issue, regardless of the gland removal.

Several breeders had said that their dog(s) were able to comfortably tolerate the procedure to remove the gland without general anesthesia. Their vet merely uses numbing drops in the eye and trims out the gland--or, in some cases the portion of the gland protruding above the third eyelid was removed and the remainder was left in place. One breeder was at a specialty show when a recurring cherry eye presented itself in her dog. She had the procedure done using eye drops to deaden the eye and her dog was able to show the next day! Some vets use scalpels to cut out the gland, others utilize a laser, but removal appears to be the most reliable and trouble-free method of treatment according to the experience of multiple Bulldog breeders over several decades of cherry eye encounters.

I personally am all in favor of a method which eliminates the need to put my Bulldog under general anesthesia! Many Bulldog owners may have a bit of an uphill battle finding a vet willing to do the gland removal but I take pretty seriously the opinion--and practical experience--of many of our wonderful Bulldog breeders!
